

I do not support Verizon or another large monopoly replacing the companies which built the Internet. I value obtaining Internet service from an independent ISP, and Verizon's request would badly affect my available choice of Internet Service.

Verizon's prices are too high for many people and their repair and technical support service is time-consuming and abominable. Consumer's should have choices along with fair prices and monopolies are ruining this for consumers who cannot afford high prices. From what I hear, you are a group that is on the side of the Bush administration's current policies and their would-be policies that are designed to destroy the middle class and create poverty for all but you ought to stop making your decisions based on what they want and be fair to hard-working American's who can afford less and less each year thanks to the Bush administration. Therefore, I repeat that I do not support any large monopolies replacing the small companies. I want choice of service and prices and I support local businesses.
